One of the 10 US cities where everyone wants to live right now.
The 16th largest city in the nation, the Charlotte region is home to more than 2.7 million people and counting. Yet even as one of the country’s fastest growing cities, it’s the Queen City’s unmeasurable amenities—our friendly and welcoming attitude, our longstanding tradition of hometown pride—that draw planners to our door.

A hard-working banking town that enjoys letting loose, Charlotte’s community comes together over good food and cold craft brews, at gallery crawls and home games. Located in the heart of walkable Uptown, the Charlotte Convention Center is in the thick of it all, so whether you’re booking a weeklong trade show, a two-day convention or a quick company retreat, you’ll feel the undeniable energy of a city on the rise.

This growing city, named after the Queen of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, may be the only place in the South where you can jump from a boisterous trip to the NASCAR Hall of Fame to a trendy rooftop bar overlooking the city’s skyline.

The staff provides some of the best customer service, and their attention to detail and professionalism is superb. They are always on top of everything for our event. They work hard each year to make it better than the year before.

hen you meet in the 550,000-square-foot Charlotte Convention Center, you enjoy the perks of a premier meeting space—free Wi-Fi, in-house food and beverage offerings for all event types, knowledgeable visitor info services, an onsite UPS store and more—in the heart of a walkable, compact convention district. A 15-minute ride from Charlotte Douglas International Airport, the Uptown venue sits across the street from a Whole Foods Market, is bookended by the Westin Hotel and the Hilton Charlotte Center City, and is connected to the NASCAR Hall of Fame via an overstreet walkway.
Charlotte’s got a lot.

Ballrooms

The Convention Center has two ballrooms, Richardson and Crown, both of which have designated indoor or outdoor pre-function spaces. The 35,000-square-foot Richardson Ballroom is easily divisible and has a 30-foot ceiling, and the 40,000-square-foot Crown Ballroom features a tiered ceiling, a built-in stage and direct access to the NASCAR Hall of Fame. Both enjoy in-house services such as catering, complimentary Wi-Fi, rigging, and technology and A/V support.

Meeting Rooms

The Convention Center currently has 126,500 square feet of flexible meeting space. With the completion of renovations in 2020, 148,700 square feet of flexible meeting space are available for booking. In total, planners will be able to choose from 55 breakout rooms. Whether your meeting is large or small, a day or a week, you’ll have access to expansive registration space, in-house catering, the Convention Center’s Delish Food Court, Starbucks, complimentary, high-speed Wi-Fi access, and support from our in-house preferred contractors.

Exhibit Halls

Totaling 280,000 square feet of contiguous space, the Convention Center’s exhibit halls can accommodate 1,250 booths or be divided into four halls, with six rooms that can serve as VIP areas or show offices overlooking the space. Four freight elevators and 20 covered loading dock bays make getting in and out easy. And additional services like the halls’ three concession stands and in-house electrical and plumbing keep events running smoothly.

Many of Charlotte’s celebrated exhibit halls sit steps from one another. For starters, the NASCAR Hall of Fame is connected to the Charlotte Convention Center and offers an excellent introduction to racing and its history. From there, you can walk to the Levine Center for the Arts, which houses the Mint Museum Uptown, the Bechtler Museum of Modern Art and the Harvey B. Gantt Center for African-American Arts + Culture. In addition to popular permanent exhibits, these museums feature speakers, film festivals and monthly jazz ensembles. A $20 ticket gets you access to all three—plus the Mint Museum Randolph in the Myers Park neighborhood—for 48 hours, making it easy for you to visit them all at your leisure.

A few blocks away, at Seventh and College streets, is the award-winning Levine Museum of the New South, an interactive museum that details Charlotte’s and the South’s growth since the Civil War. With mock houses, farms, shops and church halls, hallmark exhibit “Cotton Fields to Skyscrapers” invites guests to see, hear and, yes, even touch the South through 1,000-plus artifacts, images, video and music clips, and oral histories.

Kick back with a cocktail or a craft brew while local and touring talent steals the spotlight. With multiple bars and a comedy club, houses an amphitheater, a Latin music club and multiple indie, rock and pop music venues. If you’d rather see live action over live shows, root for one of Charlotte’s home teams. The NBA Charlotte Hornets, NFL Carolina Panthers and Triple-A affiliate Charlotte Knights play at Spectrum Center, Bank of America Stadium and BB&T Ballpark respectively, all of which are located Uptown. Bojangles’ Coliseum, where the AHL Charlotte Checkers skate, is also minutes away.

Visit Charlotte was very helpful in providing the information we needed to find the right hotel to host our group and the attractions to include in our tours and visits.
Although Uptown boasts 200-plus dining options spanning regional, national and international flavors, there are tributes to Southern fare on every block. Restaurants like The King’s Kitchen, The Asbury, Stoke Charlotte and Mert’s Heart & Soul serve mouthwatering biscuits, fried chicken and North Carolina catfish, and sides galore. Yet, thanks to the city’s appetite for new culinary talent, each offers a unique take on traditional dishes. Think chef-inspired deviled eggs (literally “chef’s whim”) at The Asbury, or seasonal creations from Chef Chris Coleman, the Central Piedmont Community College graduate behind Stoke Charlotte’s locally driven menu.

any of Charlotte’s most talented artisans are in kitchens and pubs, so it's no wonder local restaurateurs like Bruce Moffett, Paul Verica and Joe Kindred have received nods from the James Beard Foundation. A city of Southerners and of transplants, our menus marry tradition with innovation, celebrating both where we come from and where our city is going.

Likewise, Center City invites visitors to explore their palates while reveling in the Charlotte’s incomparable growth. By day, rub elbows with the Queen City’s bustling business crowd at artisanal coffee shops like Not Just Coffee, Amélie’s French Bakery and Café, and Cacao and the Director. And by night, drink in the city’s evolving skyline at Fahrenheit, Merchant & Trade, City Lights Rooftop, or The Punch Room, all known for their mixology prowess.

Away from Uptown and accessible via light rail, the South End neighborhood, another burgeoning area in the Queen City, offers the most brewery bang for your buck. In addition to locally crafted beers from tap houses such as Wooden Robot Brewery, Sycamore Brewing and Triple C Brewing Company, the district caters to non-beer drinkers, pouring sweet sips at Red Clay Ciderworks and a variety of kombucha flavors at Lenny Boy Brewing Co. Any day of the week, find locals here lounging on patios, practicing yoga or digging into food truck fare.
